At the same time, the participants emphasized the great untapped potential for practical interaction in the energy, water and other innovative sectors. The impact of the global coronavirus pandemic has also led to a delay in the implementation of individual bilateral activities. In these conditions, the use of instruments of parliamentary diplomacy, increasing dialogue between the political institutions of the two countries and intensifying the expert dialogue between representatives of scientific and analytical circles of the two countries are in demand.

From this perspective, the participants discussed the draft Plan of Joint Activities of the Committees for International Affairs of the Chambers of the Oliy Majlis of the Republic of Uzbekistan which will expand cooperation with the United States.
